We kindly decline to provide such documents, as MSDSs are not required for these products.

The Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) requires Hazard Communication (i.e. MSDSs) under the Code of Federal Regulations. The purpose of the statute is to "ensure that the hazards of all chemicals produced or imported are classified, and that information concerning the classified hazards is transmitted to employers and employees" [29 CFR § 1910.1200(a)]. However, not all chemicals are required to provide MSDSs. There are several exemptions, including "any medical or veterinary device or product..." [29 CFR § 1910.1200(b)(5)(iii)].

The Kemin products you have requested MSDSs for are Companion Animal Supplements. While they are not considered veterinary products by the Food and Drug Administration, they are governed by similar principles, and we understand them to be exempt from the MSDS requirements.

If you have any further questions, please feel free to contact me directly via phone (515-559-5161) or email (amanda.stover@kemin.com).

Sincerely,
